

"Madame Moustache"

Madame Dumont was a restless French woman who made her way as a card dealer and gambler through the mining camps of the 1800s. Her stylish appearance and the novelty of a woman dealing cards caused quite a commotion. Known as "fresh faced and attractive", as well as, "an honest dealer", Dumont was always a favorite with the miners. At some point she developed a line of hair across her upper lip, that's when she was dubbed "Madame Moustache".